Edmonton high schools could pilot streamlined crime prevention program

Tweet G+1 0 reddit this!

By: Stephanie Dubois Metro Published on Wed Dec 18 2013

Two Edmonton schools could have a more-streamlined reporting of crimes at school-level if a new pilot program is approved.

Students Speaking Out (SSO) would allow for high school students at Archbishop O'Leary and Queen Elizabeth to report any crime anonymously by calling CrimeStoppers more seamlessly.

After a CrimeStoppers crime is reported by a student, it would then be relayed along to the school's student resource officer.
